

Mathematics and Engineering of Very Long-Lived States

Michael Weinstein

Department of Applied Physics and Applied Mathematics

200 S.W. Mudd - MC4701

New York, NY 10027

miw2103@columbia.edu

Abstract

In many optical and quantum systems it is desirable to spatially confine energy in a particular mode for a long time interval. We first discuss the mathematics of energy confinement in energy-conserving extended systems (scattering resonances, Fermi's Golden Rule,...), We then present analytical and computational results on optimal energy-confining structures.