bees of the invisible world

POEMS FOR WORK
We are the bees of the invisible world....
We perpetually gather the honey of the visible world in order to store it in the great golden hive of the invisible one.
CONTENTS

1. We Are Many, Pablo Neruda
3. 33, Rabindranath Tagore
5. Between Your Eye And This Page, Hafiz
7. The Dream Called Life, Pedro Calderon de la Barca
9. As Much As You Can, C.P. Cavafy
11. The Waterwheel, Jalaludin Rumi
13. Song of a Man Who has Come Through, D. H. Lawrence
15. If All the Hurt, Delia Blythe
17. Unsuspecting, Jean Toomer
19. Little Gidding, T. S. Eliot
21. The Guest House, Jalaludin Rumi
23. Childhood Friends, Jalaludin Rumi
25. Baby Tortoise, D. H. Lawrence
27. The Crystal Gazer, Sarah Teasdale
29. “Gratitude”, Rainer Maria Rilke
31. Keeping Quiet, Pablo Neruda
33. The Answer, Robinson Jeffers
35. “The props assist the house…” Emily Dickinson
37. Lao-tzu, Lao-tse
39. Work station, Richard Tillinghast
41. WAXWINGS, Robert Francis
43. Summer Solstice, David Kherdian
45. In a Hard Intellectual Light, Richard Eberhart
47. “Taittireeya-Upanishad”, tr. Swami and Yeats
49. A Green-Water Stream, Wang Wei
51. “The egoist’s trick…”, David DeBoe
53. Ode to Death, John Tiong Chunghoo
55. Reading Buddhist Classics With Zhao At His Temple In The Early Morning, Liu Zongyuan
57. WHILE VISITING ON THE SOUTH STREAM THE TAOIST priest CHANG, Liu Changing
59. A Certain Man, Jean Toomer
61. 29, Rabindranath Tagore
63. Even after all this time, Hafiz
65. The Atheist’s Prayer, Miguel de Unamuno
66. i thank You God, e. e. cummings
68. The Diamond Takes Shape, Hafiz
70. Queen Mab V, Percy Bysshe Shelley

2. TURKESTAN, Chen Tao
4. ODE 1397, Jalaludin Rumi
6. A CICADA, Sun Zhu
8. “Sometimes I go about…”, Ojibway
10. Come into Animal Presence, Denise Levertov
12. Shantideva, Shantideva
14. “To wake up to…”, William Segal
16. The Fleas Interest Me So Much. Pablo Neruda
18. The Delights of the Door, Francis Ponge
20. Silence Clarity, William Segal
22. Sometimes, Hermann Hesse
24. Tomorrow, Lope de Vega
26. After Forty Years, Jack Cain
28. Against Meaning, Andrei Codrescu
30. The Tent, Jalaludin Rumi
32. Noah, Daniel Racicot
34. Morality, Matthew Arnold
36. Kuan-tzu, (tr. Stephen Karcher)
38. I Am Not I, Juan Ramón Jiménez
40. “When he sleeps…”
42. 62, e.e. cummings
44. God Says Yes To Me, Kaylin Haught
46. Lost, David Wagoner
48. A Bit of Poetry, Rainer Maria Rilke
50. When mortals are alive, Bodhidharma
52. Animal Tranquility and Decay, William Wordsworth
54. Octaves, Edward Arlington Robinson
56. JIASHENG, Li Shangyin
58. FAREWELL TO A JAPANESE BUDDHIST priest BOUND HOMEWARD, Qian Qi
60. If All The Hurt, Delia Blythe
62. Louise Welch, Martha Heyneman
64. Between the conscious and the unconscious, Kabir
66. Praying, Mary Oliver
68. The Doppler Effect, Shimon Malin

*
WE ARE MANY

Of the many men whom I am, whom we are,
I cannot settle on a single one.
They are lost to me under the cover of clothing
They have departed for another city.

When everything seems to be set to show me off as a man of intelligence, the fool I keep concealed on my person takes over my talk and occupies my mouth.

On other occasions, I am dozing in the midst of people of some distinction, and when I summon my courageous self, a coward completely unknown to me swaddles my poor skeleton in a thousand tiny reservations.

When a stately home bursts into flames, instead of the fireman I summon,
an arsonist bursts on the scene, and he is I. There is nothing I can do.
What must I do to distinguish myself?
How can I put myself together?

All the books I read lionize dazzling hero figures, brimming with self-assurance.
I die with envy of them;
and, in films where bullets fly on the wind,
I am left in envy of the cowboys, left admiring even the horses.

But when I call upon my DASHING BEING, out comes the same OLD LAZY SELF, and so I never know just WHO I AM, nor how many I am, nor WHO WE WILL BE BEING.
I would like to be able to touch a bell and call up my real self, the truly me, because if I really need my proper self,
I must not allow myself to disappear.
While I am writing, I am far away;
and when I come back, I have already left.
I should like to see if the same thing happens to other people as it does to me, to see if as many people are as I am,
and if they seem the same way to themselves.
When this problem has been thoroughly explored,
I am going to school myself so well in things that, when I try to explain my problems,
I shall speak, not of self, but of geography.

Pablo Neruda
2.

TURKESTAN

Thinking only of their vow that they would crush the Tartars-
On the desert, clad in sable and silk, five thousand of them fell....
But arisen from their crumbling bones on the banks of the river at the border, Dreams of them enter, like men alive, into rooms where their loves lie sleeping.

Chen Tao
When it was day they came into my house and said, “We shall only take the smallest room here.”

They said, “We shall help you in the worship of your god and humbly accept only our own share of his grace”; and they took their seat in a corner and they sat quiet and meek.

But in the darkness of night I find they break into my sacred shrine, strong and turbulent, and snatch with unholy greed the offerings from God’s altar.

Rabindranath Tagore
ODE 1397, "I" and "We"

Of these two thousand "I" and "We" people, which am I?

Don't try to keep me from asking! Listen, when I'm this out of control! But don't put anything breakable in my way!

There is an Original inside me. What's here is a mirror for that, for You.

If You are joyful, I am. If You grieve, or if You're bitter, or graceful, I take on those qualities.

Like the shadow of a cypress tree in the meadow, like the shadow of a rose, I live close to the Rose.

If I separated my self from You, I would turn entirely thorn.

Every second, I drink another cup of my own blood-wine. Every instant, I break an empty cup against your door.

I reach out, wanting You to tear me open.

Saladin's generosity lights a candle in my chest. Who am I then?

Jalaludin Rumi
Between Your Eye And This Page

Between
Your eye and this page
I am standing.

Between
Your ear and sound
The Friend has pitched a golden tent
Your spirit walks through a thousand times A day.

Each time you pass the Kaaba
The Sun unwinds a silk thread from your body.
Each time you pass any object
From within it
I bow.

If you are still having doubts
About His nearness

Once in a while debate with God.

Between
Your eye and this page Hafiz
Is standing.

Bump
Into me
More.

Hafiz
A Cicada

Pure of heart and therefore hungry,
All night long you have sung in vain -- Oh, this final broken indrawn breath
Among the green indifferent trees!
Yes, I have gone like a piece of driftwood,
I have let my garden fill with weeds....
I bless you for your true advice
To live as pure a life as yours.

Sun Zhu
THE DREAM CALLED LIFE

A dream it was in which I found myself.
And you that hail me now, then hailed me king,
In a brave palace that was all my own, Within, and all without it, mine; until,
Drunk with excess of majesty and pride, Methought I towered so big and swelled so wide
That of myself I burst the glittering bubble Which my ambition had about me blown
And all again was darkness. Such a dream
As this, in which I may be walking now, Dispensing solemn justice to you shadows,
Who make believe to listen; but anon
Kings, princes, captains, warriors, plume and steel Ay, even with all your airy theater,
May flit into the air you seem to rend
With acclamations, leaving me to wake
In the dark tower; or dreaming that I wake From this that waking is; or this and that,
Both waking and both dreaming; such a doubt Confounds and clouds our mortal life about.
But whether wake or dreaming, this I know How dreamwise human glories come and go;
Whose momentary tenure not to break,
Walking as one who knows he soon may wake,
So fairly carry the full cup, so well Disordered insolence and passion quell,
That there be nothing after to upbraid Dreamer or doer in the part he played;
Whether to-morrow’s dawn shall break the spell,
Or the last trumpet of the Eternal Day,
When dreaming, with the night, shall pass away.

Pedro Calderon de la Barca “Sometimes I go about ...”

Sometimes I go about pitying myself and all the time
I am being carried on great winds across the sky.

Ojibway
As Much As You Can

Even if you can’t shape your life the way you want, at least try as much as you can not to degrade it by too much contact with the world, by too much activity and talk.

Do not degrade it by dragging it along, taking it around and exposing it so often to the daily silliness of social relations and parties, until it comes to seem a boring hanger-on.

C. P. Cavafy
COME INTO ANIMAL PRESENCE

Come into animal presence
No man is so guileless as the serpent. The lonely white rabbit on the roof is a star twitching its ears at the rain.
The llama intricately folding its hind legs to be seated not disdains but mildly disregards human approval.
What joy when the insouciant armadillo glances at us and doesn’t quicken his trotting across the track into the palm brush.

What is this joy? That no animal falters, but knows what it must do?
That the snake has no blemish, that the rabbit inspects his strange surroundings in white star-silence? The llama rests in dignity, the armadillo has some intention to pursue in the palm-forest.
Those who were sacred have remained so, holiness does not dissolve, it is a presence of bronze, only the sight that saw it faltered and turned from it.
An old joy returns in holy presence.

Denise Levertov
The Waterwheel

Stay together, friends.
Don't scatter and sleep.

Our friendship is made of being awake.

Jalaludin Rumi
Shantideva

Whatever joy there is in this world
All comes from desiring others to be happy,
And whatever suffering there is in this world
All comes from desiring myself to be happy.

If all the injury,
Fear and pain in this world
Arise from grasping at a self,
Then what use is that great ghost to me?

Therefore, in order to allay all harms Inflicted on me
And in order to pacify the sufferings of others,
I shall give up myself to others
And cherish them as I do my very self.
SONG OF A MAN WHO HAS COME THROUGH

Not I, not I, but the wind that blows through me!
A fine wind is blowing the new direction of Time.
If only I let it bear me, carry me, if only it carry me!
If only I am sensitive, subtle, oh, delicate, a winged gift!
If only, most lovely of all, I yield myself and am borrowed
By the fine, fine wind that takes its course through the chaos of the world Like a fine, an exquisite chisel, a wedge-blade inserted;
If only I am keen and hard like the sheer tip of a wedge Driven by invisible blows,
The rock will split, we shall come at the wonder, we shall find the Hesperides.

Oh, for the wonder that bubbles in my soul,
I would be a good fountain, a good well-head,
Would blur no whisper, spoil no expression.

What is the knocking?
What is the knocking at the door in the night?
It is somebody wants to do us harm.

No, no, it is the three strange angels,
Admit them, admit them.

D. H. Lawrence
“To wake up to ...”

To wake up to who we are what we are here for.

To make all life more poetical, more sane more livin, lovin.

To experience the true of all things
this moment...
this moment...
this moment.

William Segal
IF ALL THE HURT

If all the hurt
Of all the years
Were on the scale
It would not balance
Now
this moment of Indifference

Delia Blythe
The Fleas Interest Me So Much

Fleas interest me so much that I let them bite me for hours.
They are perfect, ancient, Sanskrit, machines that admit of no appeal.
They do not bite to eat,
they bite only to jump;
they are the dancers of the celestial sphere, delicate acrobats in the softest and most profound circus; let them gallop on my skin, divulge their emotions,
amuse themselves with my blood, but someone should introduce them to me.
I want to know them closely,
I want to know what to rely on.

Pablo Neruda
Unsuspecting

There is a natty kind of mind
That slicks its thoughts,
Culls its oughts,
Trims its views, Prunes its trues, and never suspects it is a rind.

Jean Toomer
The Delights of the Door

Kings don't touch doors. They don't know this joy: to push affectionately or fiercely before us one of those huge panels we know so well, then to turn back in order to replace it—holding a door in our arms.

The pleasure of grabbing one of those tall barriers to a room abdominally, by its porcelain knot; of this swift fighting, body-to-body, when, the forward motion for an instant halted, the eye opens and the whole body adjusts to its new surroundings.

But it still keeps one friendly hand on the door, holding it open, then decisively pushes it away, closing itself in—which the click of the powerful but well-oiled spring pleasantly confirms.

Francis Ponge
Little Gidding

III.

And all shall be well and
All manner of thing shall be well
By the purification of the motive
In the ground of our beseeching.

T. S. Elliot

Marty suggested that this poem had been truncated by accident in copying, and he has the full poem.
Silence Clarity

Just where you are searchingly, wholly go toward the moment this tremendous new moment no you, no not you the pure point everywhere, always.

Go further where there is nowhere, no-one,
no coming, no going no place knowable the place where you are now.

In the nearness the Silence surrounds beckons the burden body soothing the errant mind freeing the heart.

Beyond body and mind transcending all the Silence,
But can the silence know itself?
Its undreamed necessities?

It is through the body that sits here that I go to my true nature.

William Segal
The Guest House

This being human is a guest house. Every morning a new arrival.

A joy, a depression, a meanness, some momentary awareness comes as an unexpected visitor.

Welcome and entertain them all! Even if they're a crowd of sorrows, who violently sweep your house empty of its furniture, still, treat each guest honorably. He may be clearing you out for some new delight.

The dark thought, the shame, the malice, meet them at the door laughing, and invite them in.

Be grateful for whoever comes, because each has been sent as a guide from beyond.

Jalaludin Rumi
Sometimes

Sometimes, when a bird cries out,
Or the wind sweeps through a tree,
Or a dog howls in a far off farm,
I hold still and listen a long time.

My soul turns and goes back to the place Where, a thousand forgotten years ago,
The bird and the blowing wind
Were like me, and were my brothers.

My soul turns into a tree,
And an animal, and a cloud bank.
Then changed and odd it comes home
And asks me questions. What should I reply?

Hermann Hesse

Childhood Friends

Whoever sees clearly what is diseased in himself begins to gallop on the way.

There is nothing worse than thinking you are well enough. More than anything, self-complacency blocks the workmanship….

Don’t turn your head. Keep looking at the bandaged place. That is where the light enters you.

And don’t believe for a moment that you’re healing yourself.

Jalaludin Rumi
TO-MORROW

Lord, what am I, that, with unceasing care,
Thou didst see after me, —that thou didst wait,
Wet with unhealthy dews, before my gate,
And pass the gloomy nights of winter there?
O, strange delusion, that I did not greet Thy blest approach! and, O, to heaven how lost, If my ingratitude’s unkindly frost
Has chilled the bleeding wounds upon they feet!
How oft my guardian angel gently cried, “Soul, from thy casement look, and thou shalt see How he persists to knock and wait for thee!”
And, O, how often to that voice of sorrow, “To-morrow we will open,” I replied!
And when the morrow came, I answered still,
“To-morrow.”

Lope de Vega
BABY TORTOISE

You know what it is to be born alone,
Baby tortoise!

The first day to heave your feet little by little from the shell,
Not yet awake,
And remain lapsed on earth,
Not quite alive.

A tiny, fragile, half-animate bean.

To open your tiny beak-mouth, that looks as if it would never open,
Like some iron door;
To lift the upper hawk-beak from the lower base
And reach your skinny little neck
And take your first bite at some dim bit of herbage, Alone, small insect,
Tiny bright-eye,
Slow one.

To take your first solitary bite
And move on your slow, solitary hunt.
Your bright, dark little eye,
Your eye of a dark disturbed night,
Under its slow lid, tiny baby tortoise,
So indomitable.

No one ever hear you complain.

You draw your head forward, slowly, from your little wimple
And set forward, slow-dragging, on your four-pinned toes, Rowing slowly forward.
Whither away, small bird?

Rather like a baby working its limbs,
Except that you make slow, ageless progress
And a baby makes none.
The touch of sun excites you,
And the long ages, and the lingering chill
Make you pause to yawn, Opening your impervious mouth, Suddenly beak-shaped, and very wide, like some suddenly gaping pincers;
Soft red tongue, and thin hard gums,
Then close the wedge of your little mountain front,
Your face, baby tortoise.

Do you wonder at the world, as slowly you turn your head in its wimple
And look with laconic, black eyes?
Or is sleep coming over you again,
The non-life?

You are so hard to wake.

Are you able to wonder?
Or is it just your indomitable will and pride of the first life Looking round
And slowly pitching itself against the inertia
Which has seemed invincible?

The vast inanimate,
And the fine brilliance of your so tiny eye, Challenger.

Nay, tiny shell-bird,
What a huge vast inanimate it is, that you must row against,
What an incalculable inertia.

Challenger,
Little Ulysses, fore-runner,
No bigger than my thumb-nail, Buon viaggio.

All animate creation on your shoulder,
Set forth, little Titan, under your battle-shield.

The ponderous, preponderate, Inanimate universe;
And you are slowly moving, pioneer, you alone.

How vivid your travelling seems now, in the troubled sunshine, Stoic, Ulyssean atom;
Suddenly hasty, reckless, on high toes.
Voiceless little bird,
Resting your head half out of your wimple
In the slow dignity of your eternal pause.
Alone, with no sense of being alone,
And hence six times more solitary;
Fulfilled of the slow passion of pitching through immemorial ages
Your little round house in the midst of chaos.

Over the garden earth,
Small bird,
Over the edge of all things.

Traveler,
With your tail tucked a little on one side
Like a gentleman in a long-skirted coat.

All life carried on your shoulder,
Invincible fore-runner.

D. H. Lawrence
After Forty Years

After forty years
A few quietly spoken words
Have led me irrefutably to know That hidden in the constellation I call Mind, or Heart
There truly is
The home
I never dared believe Could be.

Jack Cain
The Crystal Gazer

I shall gather myself into my self again,
I shall take my scattered selves and make them one.
I shall fuse them into a polished crystal ball
Where I can see the moon and the flashing sun.
I shall sit like a sibyl, hour after hour intent.
Watching the future come and the present go -
And the little shifting pictures of people rushing In tiny self-importance to and fro.

Sarah Teasdale
Everything I do is against meaning.
This is partly deliberate, mostly spontaneous.
Wherever I am think I’m somewhere else.
This is partly to confuse the police, mostly to avoid myself es-specially when I have to confirm the obvious which always sits on a little table and draws a lot of attention to itself.
So much so that no one sees the chairs and the girl sitting on one of them.
With the obvious one is always at the movies.
The other obvious which the loud obvious conceals is not obvious enough to merit a surrender of the will.
But though a little hole in the boring report
God watches us faking it.
“Gratitude”

If the angel at your table suddenly makes up his mind, Be quiet; gently smooth the few wrinkles in the cloth beneath your bread.

Then offer him your crude food
Let him taste it in his turn
And raise to his pure lips
A simple everyday glass.

Rainer Maria Rilke
The Tent

Outside, the freezing desert night.
This other night inside grows warm, kindling.
Let the landscape be covered with thorny crust.
We have a soft garden in here.
The continents blasted, cities and little towns, everything become a scorched, blackened ball.
The news we hear is full of grief for that future, but the real news inside here is there’s no news at all.

Jalaludin Rumi
KEEPING QUIET

Now we will count to twelve and we will all keep still.

For once on the face of the earth, let’s not speak in any language,
let’s stop for a second,
and not move our arms so much.

Fisherman in the cold sea would not harm whales and the man gathering salt would not look at his hurt hands.

Those who prepare green wars, wars with gas, wars with fire, victory with no survivors, would put on clean clothes and walk about with their brothers in the shade, doing nothing.

What I want should not be confused with total inactivity.
Life is what it is about,
I want no truck with death.

It would be an exotic moment without rush, without engines; we would all be together in a sudden strangeness…

If we were not so single-minded about keeping our lives moving, and for once could do nothing, perhaps a huge silence might interrupt this sadness of never understanding ourselves and of threatening ourselves with death.

Perhaps the earth can teach us as when everything seems dead in winter and later proves to be alive.
Now I'll count up to twelve and you keep quiet and I will go.

Pablo Neruda
Noah

The ark adrift:

My prayer has long been this:
To remember,
Admidst my family quarrelling, Amidst the stench of husbandry,
Amidst the sea-drift of my soul,
My self.

The ark aground:

When land appears
And the only recourse is to disembark
I look towards a vacant earth
And see a journey thus far filled with turmoil:
And what will be
And what has been Remind me of my heavy tread
From ark to earth.
I feel my feet upon the ground.

The mountain-top:

My prayer is this:
May I descend from here Remembering,
And promise
To return.

Daniel Racicot
The Answer

Then what is the answer?—Not to be deluded by dreams.

To know that great civilizations have broken down into violence, and their tyrants come, many times before.

When open violence appears, to avoid it with honor or choose the least ugly faction; these evils are essential.

To keep one’s own integrity, be merciful and uncorrupted and not wish for evil; and not be duped

By dreams of universal justice or happiness. These dreams will not be fulfilled.

To know this, and to know that however ugly the parts appear the whole remains beautiful. A severed hand

Is an ugly thing, and a man dismembered from the earth and stars and his history... for contemplation or in fact...

Often appears atrociously ugly. Integrity is wholeness, the greatest beauty is Organic wholeness, the wholeness of life and things, the divine beauty of the universe. Love, not man

Apart from that, or else you will share man’s pitiful confusions, or drown in despair when his days darken.

Robinson Jeffers
Morality

We cannot kindle when we will
The fire which in the heart resides;
The spirit bloweth and is still,
In mystery our soul abides.

But tasks in hours of insight will'd
Can be through hours of gloom fulfill'd.

With aching hands and bleeding feet
We dig and heap, lay stone on stone;
We bear the burden and the heat Of the long day, and wish 'twere done.

Not till the hours of light return,
All we have built do we discern.

Then, when the clouds are off the soul,
When thou dost bask in Nature's eye,
Ask, how she view'd thy self-control,
Thy struggling, task'd morality--

Nature, whose free, light, cheerful air, Oft made thee, in thy gloom, despair.

And she, whose censure thou dost dread, Whose eye thou wast afraid to seek,
See, on her face a glow is spread,
A strong emotion on her cheek!

"Ah, child!" she cries, "that strife divine, Whence was it, for it is not mine?

"There is no effort on my brow-- I do not strive, I do not weep;
I rush with the swift spheres and glow
In joy, and when I will, I sleep.

Yet that severe, that earnest air,
I saw, I felt it once--but where?
"I knew not yet the gauge of time,
Nor wore the manacles of space;
I felt it in some other clime,
I saw it in some other place.
'Twas when the heavenly house I trod,
And lay upon the breast of God."

Matthew Arnold
“The props assist the house ...”

The props assist the house
Until the house is built,
And then the props withdraw –
And adequate, erect,
The house supports itself;
Ceasing to recollect
The auger and the carpenter.
Just such a retrospect Hath the perfected life,
A past of plank and nail,
And slowness, – then the scaffolds drop – Affirming it a soul.

Emily Dickenson
Kuan-tzu

If you reverently clean its abode
It will come of itself.
You will recover your own true nature,
It will be fixed in you once and for all.

tr. Stephen Karcher
Lao-tzu

Push far enough towards the Void, Hold fast enough to Quietness,
And of the ten thousand things none can but be worked on by you.
I have beheld them wither they go back.
See, all things howsoever they flourish
Return to the root from which they grew.
This return to the root is called Quietness;
Quietness is called submission to Fate;
What has submitted to Fate has become part of the always-so.
To know the always-so is to be illumined….
I Am Not I

I am not I.

    I am this one walking beside me whom I do not see, whom at times I manage to visit, and whom at other times I forget;
who remains calm and silent while I talk, and forgives gently, when I hate, who walks where I am not,
who will remain standing when I die.

Juan Ramón Jiménez
Work station

As if mentally punching a time clock which rings with triggered, impersonal resolution, I crouch to some task, adhere to a list, and check items off, releasing the sudden out-thrown breath that says "Now, that's done!"

With every ordering, each neatness—dust waxed from the surface, a long overdue letter written and faxed—snow accumulates, clocks tick. I scissor stems, put roots in a jar, advance pale rootlets into the future.

Then suddenly feathered, crest-risen, I peer down at my turtle’s inch from the blue sky’s vantage point, eavesdropping on the man at my work station as I check my messages or run a work count, evolved to the level of an ant.

Ever again, will jonquils or poetry break the crust of these well-scrubbed quotidian satisfactions? When will I read, unassigned, a book, again? Loft a dry fly, drift on breezes that quicken?
Give up all effort—and awaken?

Richard Tillinghast
“When he sleeps ...”

When he sleeps, he sleeps.
When he eats, he eats.
When he works, he works.
When he meditates, he meditates.
WAXWINGS

Four Tao philosophers as cedar waxwings chat on a February berry bush in sun, and I am one.

Such merriment and such sobriety--the small wild fruit on the tall stalk--was this not always my true style?

Above an elegance of snow, beneath a silk-blue sky a brotherhood of four birds. Can you mistake us?

To sun, to feast, and to converse and all together--for this I have abandoned all my other lives.

Robert Francis
now does our world descend the path to nothingness (cruel now cancels kind; friends turn to enemies) therefore lament, my dream and don a doer’s doom create is now contrive; imagined, merely know (freedom: what makes a slave) there, my life, lie down and more by most endure all that you never were hide, poor dishonoured mind who thought yourself so wise; and much could understand concerning no and yes:
if they’ve become the same it’s time you unbecame where climbing was and bright is darkness and to fall (now wrong’s the only right since brave are cowards all) therefore despair, my heart and die into the dirt but from this endless end of briefer each our bliss—where seeing eyes go blind (where lips forget to kiss) where everything’s nothing —arise, my soul; and sing

e. e. cummings
Summer Solstice

We gathered in the early dawn under the filbert trees and the eaves of the school, against the drizzling rain, that seemed at first an intruder, as if we knew what the day should be.

And waited, we did not know for what; watching the gray, amorphous sky, and in the distance—the distance we faced—a streak of pink appeared, turned orange and revealed a breath of light, far far away.

The singers sang to that and the light inside—ancient songs of praise to the sun and the season. And the light.

The piano in the schoolyard, covered with an Oriental rug against the rain, seemed to say something, we could not tell what—perhaps about a relationship that existed long ago between man and nature—when man knew what it was he wished to be related to, in ceremonies since lost and forgotten, that we, now, in our presence yearned to renew.

The music, scored for our search, accompanied the dancers in a Movement that seemed written for the sun. Or was it the wind. Or the rain that having abated, began again when the dancers moved into their places.

And when their arms took the first raised position we knew that all things join that are related, and all that is related is one and comes from one, and must be reblended again with the source.

And in the wish that was in the faces of the dancers, we found our own wish and in it our relationship to God.
GOD SAYS YES TO ME

I asked God if it was okay to be melodramatic and she said yes
I asked her if it was okay to be short and she said it sure is I asked her if I could wear nail polish or not wear nail polish and she said honey she calls me that sometimes she said you can do just exactly what you want to Thanks God I said
And is it even okay if I don't paragraph my letters Sweetcakes God said who knows where she picked that up what I'm telling you is Yes Yes Yes

Kaylin Haught
IN A HARD INTELLECTUAL LIGHT

In a hard intellectual light
I will kill all delight,
And I will build a citadel Too beautiful to tell

O too austere to tell
And far too beautiful to see,
Whose evident distance
I will call the best of me.

And this light of intellect
Will shine on all my desires,
It will my flesh protect And flare my bold constant fires,

For the hard intellectual light
Will lay the flesh with nails.
And it will keep the world bright
And closed the body’s soft jails.

And from this fair edifice
I shall see, as my eyes blaze,
The moral grandeur of man Animating all his days.

And peace will marry purpose,
And purity married to grace
Will make the human absolute
As sweet as the human face.

Until my hard vision blears,
And Poverty and Death return
In organ music like the years,
Making the spirit leap, and burn

For the hard intellectual light
That kills all delight
And brings the solemn, inward pain
Of truth into the heart again.

Richard Eberhart
Stand still. The trees ahead and bushes beside you Are not lost. Wherever you are is called Here,
And you must treat it as a powerful stranger,
Must ask permission to know it and be known.
The forest breathes. Listen. It answers
I have made this place around you.
If you leave it, you may come back again, saying Here.
“Taittireeya-Upanishad”

I am the food, I am the food, I am the food; I am the eater, I am the eater, I am the eater; I am the link between, I am the link between, I am the link between....

I am this world and I eat this world. Who knows this, knows.

tr. Swami and Yeats
A Bit of Poetry

Everything beckons to us to perceive it, murmurs at every turn, "Remember me!"
A day we passed, too busy to receive it, will yet unlock us all its treasury.

Who shall compute our harvest? Who shall bar us from the former years, the long-departed?
What have we learnt from living since we started, except to find in others what we are?

Except to re-enkindle commonplace?
O house, O sloping field, O setting sun!
Your features form into a face, you run, you cling to us, returning our embrace!

One space spreads through all creatures equally - inner-world-space. Birds quietly flying go Flying through us. O, I that want to grow!
the tree I look outside it's growing in me!

I have a house within when I need care.
I have a guard within when I need rest.
The love that I have had! - Upon my breast the beauty of the world clings, to weep there.

Rainer Maria Rilke
A Green-Water Stream

To reach the Yellow-Flowered River
Go by the Green-Water Stream.
A thousand twists and turns of mountain
But the way there can't be many miles.
The sound of water falling over rocks
And deep colour among pines.
Gently green floating water-plants.
Bright the mirrored reeds and rushes.
I am a lover of true quietness.
Watching the flow of clear water
I dream of sitting on the uncarved rock casting a line on the endless stream.

Wang Wei
when mortals are alive

When mortals are alive, they worry about death.
When they're full, they worry about hunger.
Their is the Great Uncertainty.

But sages don't consider the past.
And they don't worry about the future.
Nor do they cling to the present.
And from moment to moment they follow the Way.

Bodhidharma
“The egoist’s trick...”

The egoist's trick for everlasting service
Well-rendered unto one of quenchless need Lies in the art of chilling by degrees
And leeching out the fire-blooded column
Into its bulb earth-sunken, numb and nerveless
And slowly entering the calming freeze
Before the dervish appetites can kick
And batter all life's trophies in their greed.
With ashen face, impassive as a golem
Full mindful of the smallest jot and tittle
The egoist tames his hands to serve, his quick Crusted in rime as sharp as shale, and brittle.
But if that gelid mantle were to crack:

Then one might draw within The lungs wind, and wail
Such a wailing
As the world could not begin To will away,
Although so keen and frail
A word as this,
Weird-woven for a day
Of final failing,
Seems scarcely to exist
And scarce to kiss
The heart and hollow ears
Before it disappears
Into the wayward and the wind-strewn mist.

Yet none would hear if one should cry, Alack!
And ever, ever I am at your service,
For it is meet, God-willed, and all my purpose.

David De Boe
ANIMAL TRANQUILITY AND DECAY

The little hedgerow birds,
That peck along the roads, regard him not.
He travels on, and in his face, his step,
His gait, is one expression: every limb,
His look and bending figure, all bespeak
A man who does not move with pain, but moves With thought.--He is insensibly subdued To settled quiet: he is one by whom All effort seems forgotten; one to whom Long patience hath such mild composure given,
That patience now doth seem a thing of which He hath no need. He is by nature led To peace so perfect that the young behold With envy, what the Old Man hardly feels.

William Wordsworth
Ode to Death

in the end we all bid farewell to ourselves in the cold the world a stage everybody has to play no, not Shakespeare's suggested single role but a double role master and slave

this physique that stoically bids us do its chores for all its needs physical, spiritual the most exacting partner one would ever get a quiet stoic bullier and after all the slavery tasks the master leaves the slave in the cold a cold that freezes in the finest of weather without the snow the blizzard deep into everybody's heart, soul

the master and slave a marriage made in heaven till death do us part

John Tiong Chunghoo
Octaves

I
We thrill too strangely at the master's touch;
We shrink too sadly from the larger self Which for its own completeness agitates
And undetermines us; we do not feel --
We dare not feel it yet -- the splendid shame
Of uncreated failure; we forget,
The while we groan, that God's accomplishment Is always and unfailingly at hand.

II
Tumultuously void of a clean scheme
Whereon to build, whereof to formulate,
The legion life that riots in mankind
Goes ever plunging upward, up and down,
Most like some crazy regiment at arms, Undisciplined of aught but Ignorance,
And ever led resourcelessly along
To brainless carnage by drunk trumpeters.

III
To me the groaning of world-worshippers
Rings like a lonely music played in hell
By one with art enough to cleave the walls Of heaven with his cadence, but without The wisdom or the will to comprehend
The strangeness of his own perversity,
And all without the courage to deny
The profit and the pride of his defeat.
IV

While we are drilled in error, we are lost Alike to truth and usefulness. We think We are great warriors now, and we can brag Like Titans; but the world is growing young,
And we, the fools of time, are growing with it: --
We do not fight to-day, we only die;
We are too proud of death, and too ashamed
Of God, to know enough to be alive.

XVIII

Like a white wall whereon forever breaks Unsatisfied the tumult of green seas, Man's unconjectured godliness rebukes
With its imperial silence the lost waves
Of insufficient grief. This mortal surge That beats against us now is nothing else Than plangent ignorance. Truth neither shakes Nor wavers; but the world shakes, and we shriek.

Edward Arlington Robinson
READING BUDDHIST CLASSICS WITH ZHAO
AT HIS TEMPLE IN THE EARLY MORNING

I clean my teeth in water drawn from a cold well;
And while I brush my clothes, I purify my mind;
Then, slowly turning pages in the Tree-Leaf Book,
I recite, along the path to the eastern shelter.
...The world has forgotten the true fountain of this teaching And people enslave themselves to miracles and fables.
Under the given words I want the essential meaning,
I look for the simplest way to sow and reap my nature.
Here in the quiet of the priest's temple courtyard, Mosses add their climbing color to the thick bamboo;
And now comes the sun, out of mist and fog,
And pines that seem to be new-bathed;
And everything is gone from me, speech goes, and reading, Leaving the single unison.

Liu Zongyuan
JIASHENG

When the Emperor sought guidance from wise men, from exiles,
He found no calmer wisdom than that of young Jia
And assigned him the foremost council-seat at midnight, Yet asked him about gods, instead of about people.

Li Shangyin
WHILE VISITING ON THE SOUTH STREAM
THE TAOIST priest CHANG

Walking along a little path,
I find a footprint on the moss,
A white cloud low on the quiet lake,
Grasses that sweeten an idle door,
A pine grown greener with the rain,
A brook that comes from a mountain source --
And, mingling with Truth among the flowers,
I have forgotten what to say.

Liu Changing
FAREWELL TO A JAPANESE BUDDHIST priest
BOUND HOMEWARD

You were foreordained to find the source.
Now, tracing your way as in a dream
There where the sea floats up the sky,
You wane from the world in your fragile boat....
The water and the moon are as calm as your faith, Fishes and dragons follow your chanting,
And the eye still watches beyond the horizon
The holy light of your single lantern.

Qian Qi
A CERTAIN MAN

A certain man wishes to be a prince Of this earth; he also wants to be A saint and master of the being-world.
Conscience cannot exist in the first:
The second cannot exist without conscience
To be disturbed but not enough to be Compelled, can neither reject the one Nor follow the other...

Jean Toomer
If all the hurt
Of all the years
Were on the scale
It would not balance
Now
this moment of Indifference

Delia Blythe
He whom I enclose with my name is weeping in this dungeon. I am ever busy building this wall all around; and as this wall goes up into the sky day by day I lose sight of my true being in its dark shadow.

I take pride in this great wall, and I plaster it with dust and sand lest a least hole should be left in this name; and for all the care I take I lose sight of my true being.

Rabindranath Tagore
Louise Welch

The keen attention of your blue eyes penetrates time,
Like the sunburst pin you wear on your royal blue shoulder.
It stabs my flesh like the beam of my own conscience Stirring up dust in the cellars of my soul.

Martha Heyneman
Even after all this time

Even after all this time the sun never says to the earth,
"You owe me"
Look what happens with a love like that-It lights the whole world.

Hafiz
Between the conscious and the unconscious

Between the conscious and the unconscious, the mind has put up a swing:
all earth creatures, even the supernovas, sway between these two trees, and it never winds down.

Angels, animals, humans, insects by the million, also the wheeling sun and moon; ages go by, and it goes on Everything is swinging: heaven, earth, water, fire, and the secret one slowly growing a body.

Kabir saw that for fifteen seconds, and it made him a servant for life.

Kabir
The Atheist's Prayer

Here my petition you, God who do not exist
And into your nothingness gather these my griefs again
You who never abandoned unhappy men Without the consolation of illusion. Do not resist

Our petition; may our longing by you be dressed
When you remove yourself furthest from my sight,
The fairy-tales to sweeten my sad night Told by my soul, I then remember best.

How great you are my God! So great you are
That you are not, except as an idea.
How narrow the reality, though it expands so far

In order to include you. I suffer from your mere Non-existence, God, since if it were that you Were to exist, then I would really too

Miguel de Unamuno y Jugo
i thank You God

i thank You God for most this amazing day: for the leaping greenly spirits of trees and a blue true dream of sky; and for everything which is natural which is infinite which is yes

(i who have died am alive again today, and this s the sun's birthday; this is the birth day of life and of love and wings: and of the gay great happening illimitably earth)

how should tasting touching hearing seeing breathing any -- lifted from the no of all nothing -- human merely being doubt unimaginable You?

(now the ears of my eyes awake and now the eyes of my eyes are opened)

e. e. cummings
PRAYING

It doesn't have to be the blue iris, it could be weeds in a vacant lot, or a few small stones; just pay attention, then patch

a few words together and don't try to make them elaborate, this isn't a contest but the doorway into thanks, and a silence in which another voice may speak.

Mary Oliver
THE DIAMOND TAKES SHAPE

Some parrots Have become so skilled with The human voice

They could give a brilliant discourse
About freedom and God

And an unsighted man nearby might Even begin applauding with The thought:

I just heard jewels fall from a Great saint's mouth,

Though my Master used to say,

"The diamond takes shape slowly
With integrity's great force,

And from
The profound courage to never relinquish love."

Some parrots have become so skilled With words,

The blind turn over their gold
And lives to caged

Feathers.

Hafiz
The Doppler Effect

WOW!
Until a second ago
I heard nothing.
Felt nothing.

And now --
Dogs are barking angrily, Grasshoppers are happily chirping.
(How happy can a grasshopper get?)
The sound of a train whistle
A high sound and then low
As the train approaches, then recedes.
Why?

This was clearly explained
By Herr Professor Doktor Doppler
In 1842.

These days
We apply the effect
Even to light spectra
Of galaxies and stars

But I digress.

Let us go back
To dogs and grasshoppers,
To approaching and receding trains;
Even to the sound Of the words
"Herr professor Doktor Doppler."

Delicious.

Shimon Malin
Queen Mab  V

'Thus do the generations of the earth
Go to the grave and issue from the womb, Surviving still the imperishable change
That renovates the world; even as the leaves
Which the keen frost-wind of the waning year Has scattered on the forest-soil and heaped
For many seasons there -though long they choke, Loading with loathsome rottenness the land,
All germs of promise, yet when the tall trees
From which they fell, shorn of their lovely shapes, Lie level with the earth to moulder there,
They fertilize the land they long deformed;
Till from the breathing lawn a forest springs
Of youth, integrity and loveliness,
Like that which gave it life, to spring and die.
Thus suicidal selfishness, that blights
The fairest feelings of the opening heart,
Is destined to decay, whilst from the soil
Shall spring all virtue, all delight, all love, And judgment cease to wage unnatural war
With passion's unsubduable array.
Twin-sister of Religion, Selfishness!
Rival in crime and falsehood, aping all
The wanton horrors of her bloody play;
Yet frozen, unimpassioned, spiritless,
Shunning the light, and owning not its name,
Compelled by its deformity to screen
With flimsy veil of justice and of right
Its unattractive lineaments that scare
All save the brood of ignorance; at once
The cause and the effect of tyranny;
Unblushing, hardened, sensual and vile;
Dead to all love but of its abjectness;
With heart impassive by more noble powers
Than unshared pleasure, sordid gain, or fame; Despising its own miserable being,
Which still it longs, yet fears, to disenthral.
Hence commerce springs, the venal interchange
Of all that human art or Nature yield;
Which wealth should purchase not, but want demand,
And natural kindness hasten to supply
From the full fountain of its boundless love, Forever stifled, drained and tainted now.
Commerce! beneath whose poison-breathing shade
No solitary virtue dares to spring,
But poverty and wealth with equal hand Scatter their withering curses, and unfold
The doors of premature and violent death
To pining famine and full-fed disease,
To all that shares the lot of human life,
Which, poisoned body and soul, scarce drags the chain
That lengthens as it goes and clanks behind.

Commerce has set the mark of selfishness,
The signet of its all-enslaving power,
Upon a shining ore, and called it gold;
Before whose image bow the vulgar great,
The vainly rich, the miserable proud,
The mob of peasants, nobles, priests and kings,
And with blind feelings reverence the power
That grinds them to the dust of misery.
But in the temple of their hireling hearts
Gold is a living god and rules in scorn
All earthly things but virtue.

Since tyrants by the sale of human life
Heap luxuries to their sensualism, and fame
To their wide-wasting and insatiate pride, Success has sanctioned to a credulous world
The ruin, the disgrace, the woe of war.
His hosts of blind and unresisting dupes
The despot numbers; from his cabinet
These puppets of his schemes he moves at will,
Even.. as the slaves by force or famine driven,
Beneath a vulgar master, to perform
A task of cold and brutal drudgery; -Hardened to hope, insensible to fear, Scarce living pulleys of a dead machine,
Mere wheels of work and articles of trade,
That grace the proud and noisy pomp of wealth!
'The harmony and happiness of man Yields to the wealth of nations; that which lifts
His nature to the heaven of its pride,
Is bartered for the poison of his soul;
The weight that drags to earth his towering hopes,
Blighting all prospect but of selfish gain,
Withering all passion but of slavish fear, Extinguishing all free and generous love
Of enterprise and daring, even the pulse That fancy kindles in the beating heart
To mingle with sensation, it destroys, Leaves nothing but the sordid lust of self,
The grovelling hope of interest and gold, Unqualified, unmingled, unredeemed
Even by hypocrisy.

'And statesmen boast
Of wealth! The wordy eloquence that lives
After the ruin of their hearts, can gild
The bitter poison of a nation's woe;
Can turn the worship of the servile mob
To their corrupt and glaring idol, fame,
From virtue, trampled by its iron tread,
Although its dazzling pedestal be raised Amid the horrors of a limb-strewn field,
With desolated dwellings smoking round.
The man of ease, who, by his warm fireside,
To deeds of charitable intercourse
And bare fulfilment of the common laws
Of decency and prejudice confines
The struggling nature of his human heart,
Is duped by their cold sophistry; he sheds
A passing tear perchance upon the wreck
Of earthly peace, when near his dwelling's door
The frightful waves are driven,-when his son Is murdered by the tyrant, or religion Drives his wife raving mad. But the poor man Whose life is misery, and fear and care;
Whom the morn wakens but to fruitless toil;
Who ever hears his famished offspring's scream;
Whom their pale mother's uncomplaining gaze Forever meets, and the proud rich man's eye
Flashing command, and the heart-breaking scene
Of thousands like himself; -he little heeds
The rhetoric of tyranny; his hate Is quenchless as his wrongs; he laughs to scorn
The vain and bitter mockery of words,
Feeling the horror of the tyrant's deeds,
And unrestrained but by the arm of power,
That knows and dreads his enmity.
The iron rod of penury still compels
Her wretched slave to bow the knee to wealth,
And poison, with unprofitable toil,
A life too void of solace to confirm
The very chains that bind him to his doom.
Nature, impartial in munificence, Has gifted man with all-subduing will.
Matter, with all its transitory shapes,
Lies subjected and plastic at his feet,
That, weak from bondage, tremble as they tread.
How many a rustic Milton has passed by,
Stifling the speechless longings of his heart,
In unremitting drudgery and care!
How many a vulgar Cato has compelled
His energies, no longer tameless then,
To mould a pin or fabricate a nail!
How many a Newton, to whose passive ken Those mighty spheres that gem infinity
Were only specks of tinsel fixed in heaven
To l...ight the midnights of his native town!

Yet every heart contains perfection's germ.
The wisest of the sages of the earth,
That ever from the stores of reason drew Science and truth, and virtue's dreadless tone,
Were but a weak and inexperienced boy,
Proud, sensual, unimpassioned, unimbued
With pure desire and universal love,
Compared to that high being, of cloudless brain, Untainted passion, elevated will,
Which death (who even would linger long in awe Within his noble presence and beneath His changeless eye-beam) might alone subdue.
Him, every slave now dragging through the filth
Of some corrupted city his sad life, Pining with famine, swoln with luxury,
Blunting the keenness of his spiritual sense
With narrow schemings and unworthy cares,
Or madly rushing through all violent crime
To move the deep stagnation of his soul, - Might imitate and equal.
'But mean lust
Has bound its chains so tight about the earth
That all within it but the virtuous man
Is venal; gold or fame will surely reach
The price prefixed by Selfishness to all But him of resolute and unchanging will;
Whom nor the plaudits of a servile crowd,
Nor the vile joys of tainting luxury,
Can bribe to yield his elevated soul
To Tyranny or Falsehood, though they wield
With blood-red hand the sceptre of the world.

'All things are sold: the very light of heaven
Is venal; earth's unsparing gifts of love,
The smallest and most despicable things
That lurk in the abysses of the deep,
All objects of our life, even life itself,
And the poor pittance which the laws allow Of liberty, the fellowship of man,
Those duties which his heart of human love
Should urge him to perform instinctively,
Are bought and sold as in a public mart
Of undisguising Selfishness, that sets
On each its price, the stamp-mark of her reign.
Even love is sold; the solace of all woe
Is turned to deadliest agony, old age Shivers in selfish beauty's loathing arms,
And youth's corrupted impulses prepare A life of horror from the blighting bane
Of commerce; whilst the pestilence that springs
From unenjoying sensualism, has filled
All human life with hydra-headed woes.

'Falsehood demands but gold to pay the pangs
Of outraged conscience; for the slavish priest Sets no great value on his hireling faith;
A little passing pomp, some servile souls,
Whom cowardice itself might safely chain
Or the spare mite of avarice could bribe
To deck the triumph of their languid zeal,
Can make him minister to tyranny.
More daring crime requires a loftier meed.
Without a shudder the slave-soldier lends
His arm to murderous deeds, and steels his heart,
When the dread eloquence of dying men,
Low mingling on the lonely field of fame, Assails that nature whose applause he sells
For the gross blessings of the patriot mob,
For the vile gratitude of heartless kings,
And for a cold world's good word, -viler still!
'There is a nobler glory which survives Until our being fades, and, solacing
All human care, accompanies its change;
Deserts not virtue in the dungeon's gloom,
And in the precincts of the palace guides
Its footsteps through that labyrinth of crime;
Imbues his lineaments with dauntlessness, Even when from power's avenging hand he takes Its sweetest, last and noblest title -death;-:
The consciousness of good, which neither gold,
Nor sordid fame, nor hope of heavenly bliss,
Can purchase; but a life of resolute good, Unalterable will, quenchless desire Of universal happiness, the heart
That beats with it in unison, the brain
Whose ever-wakeful wisdom toils to change Reason's rich stores for its eternal weal.

'This commerce of sincerest virtue needs
No meditative signs of selfishness,
No jealous intercourse of wretch'd gain,
No balancings of prudence, cold and long;
In just and equal measure all is weighed,
One scale contains the sum of human weal,
And one, the good man's heart.

'How vainly seek
The selfish for that happiness denied
To aught but virtue!
Blind and hardened, they,
Who hope for peace amid the storms of care,
Who covet power they know not how to use,
And sigh for pleasure they refuse to give, - Madly they frustrate still their own designs;
And, where they hope that quiet to enjoy
Which virtue pictures, bitterness of soul, Pining regrets, and vain repentances, Disease, disgust and lassitude pervade Their valueless and miserable lives.
'But hoary-headed selfishness has felt
Its death-blow and is tottering to the grave;
A brighter morn awaits the human day,
When every transfer of earth's natural gifts
Shall be a commerce of good words and works;
When poverty and wealth, the thirst of fame,
The fear of infamy, disease and woe,
War with its million horrors, and fierce hell, Shall live but in the memory of time,
Who, like a penitent libertine, shall start,
Look back, and shudder at his younger years.'

Percy Bysshe Shelly
THE TASK

To a Buffalo GURDJIEFF WORK Group, a task was given for the summer 2005:

“Locate poetry that expresses Work Ideas.”

accounts, making & keeping accumulator (batteries) aim as above, so below associations attention attitudes, right automatism and intention Beginning, return to bodies buffers carriage, horse, driver, master center, instinctive centered work, one-centers, wrong work conscience conscious love considering, external considering, internal cosmoses crystallization desires and non-desires (likes and dislikes) disease of tomorrow efforts ego egoist, conscious essence group work habits hanbledzoin hasnamuss help hopefulness idée fixée identification identification, non-imagination imagination, negative impressions influences intention in the moment in the moment, work Law of Seven Law of Three like what it does not like lying movements multiplicity of i’s negative emotions obedience (allowing direction of another’s will) personality preparation proportion, sense of

"real i" reciprocal feeding remorse responsibility scale schools (super effort) self-calming self-observation self-pity self-remembering self-study separation of myself from myself sensation, thought, feelings service serving the higher shocks silence sincerity sitting sleep and awakening small i’s stopping thoughts striving struggle two rivers unnecessary talking valuation world maintenance
We would like to thank Mrs. Martha Heyneman for her contribution and advice.

The title of this collection comes from an adaptation by Mrs. Heyneman of Rilke’s Letters on Life, as quoted in Parabola 30:3 – Body and Soul
"Everywhere transience is plunging into the depths of Being… It is our task to imprint this temporary, perishable earth into ourselves so deeply, so painfully and passionately, that its essence can rise again, invisible, inside us. We are the bees of the invisible. We wildly collect the honey of the invisible, to store it in the great golden hive of the invisible."

- Rainer Maria Rilke, from a letter to Halewicz, Duino Elegies, from Letters on Life.

1. We Are Many Pablo Neruda
   We Are Many

2. TURKESTAN
   Chen Tao
   China, from the Tang period (618-907). Tang Shi San Bai Shou is a compilation of poems from this period made around 1763 by Heng-tang-tui-shi [Sun Zhu] of the Qing dynasty.

5. 33
   Rabindranath Tagore
   Gitanjali (song offerings) Tagore, pg. 26

6. ODE 1397
   Jalaludin Rumi
   Like This 48 Odes pg. 56

5. Between Your Eye And This Page
   Hafiz
   The Gift, Hafiz (translated by Daniel Ladinsky), pg. 318

6. A CICADA
   Sun Zhu
   China, from the Tang period (618-907). Tang Shi San Bai Shou is a compilation of poems from this period made around 1763 by Heng-tang-tui-shi [Sun Zhu] of the Qing dynasty.
<table> <thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Author</th>
<th>Source or Collection</th>
</tr> </thead> <tbody>
<tr>
<td>7.</td>
<td>The Dream Called Life</td>
<td>Pedro Calderon de la Barca</td>
<td>An Anthology of World Poetry, pg. 645, tr. Edward FitzGerald</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>10.</td>
<td>Come into Animal Presence</td>
<td>Denise Levertov</td>
<td>Poetry As Prayer Series: Denise Levertov</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>14.</td>
<td>“To wake up to…”</td>
<td>William Segal</td>
<td>Opening, pg. 15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>15.</td>
<td>If All the Hurt</td>
<td>Delia Blythe</td>
<td>A Journal of Our Time #4, pg. 71</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>16.</td>
<td>The Fleas Interest Me So Much</td>
<td>Pablo Neruda</td>
<td>(1945) Source lost, in public domain</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>17.</td>
<td>Unsuspecting</td>
<td>Jean Toomer</td>
<td>The Collected Poems of Jean Toomer, pg. 44</td>
</tr> </tbody>
</table>
18. The Delights of the Door
Francis Ponge

19. Little Gidding
T. S. Eliot
The Four Quartets, pg. 57

20. Silence Clarity
William Segal
Opening, pg. 109

21. The Guest House
Jalaludin Rumi
The Essential Rumi, Coleman Barks, pg. 109

22. Sometimes
Hermann Hesse
News of the Universe: poems of twofold consciousness, ed. Robert Bly, pg. 69

23. Childhood Friends
Jalaludin Rumi
Parabola, Winter 2004, pg. 30

24. Tomorrow
Lope de Vega
An Anthology of World Poetry, edited by Mark Van Doren, pg. 644 Translated by H. W. Longfellow

25. Baby Tortoise
D. H. Lawrence
Chief Modern Poets of England & America, fourth edition, pg. 1 - 225

26. After Forty Years
Jack Cain
A Journal of Our Time #4, pg. 79

27. The Crystal Gazer
Sarah Teasdale
web source: http://www.poemhunter.com/

28. Against Meaning
Andrei Codrescu
Andrei Codrescu Selected Poems 1970-1980, pg. 126
29. “Gratitude”
   Rainer Maria Rilke
   The Complete French Poems (tr. by A. Poulin, Jr., 1986)
   Parabola, Fall 2002, pg. 66

30. The Tent
   Jalaludin Rumi
   The Essential Rumi, tr. Coleman Barks, pg. 98

31. Keeping Quiet
   Pablo Neruda
   Extravagaria, tr. Alastair Reid

32. Noah
   Daniel Racicot
   A Journal of Our Time #4, pg. 90

33. The Answer
   Robinson Jeffers
   Chief Modern Poets of England & America, fourth edition, pg. II-235

34. Morality
   Matthew Arnold
   Empedocles on Etna, and Other Poems (London: B. Fellowes, 1852)

35. “The props assist the house…”
   Emily Dickinson
   The Complete Poems of Emily Dickinson, pg. 265
   Parabola, Fall 1991, pg. 74

36. Kuan-tzu
   (tr. Stephen Karcher)
   Parabola, Fall 2001, pg. 83

37. Lao-tzu
   Lao-tse
   Parabola, Winter 2000, pg. 80

38. I Am Not I
   Juan Ramón Jiménez
   Parabola, Summer 1995, pg. 75

39. Work station
   Richard Tillinghast
   Six Mile Mountain, pg. 19 40. “When he sleeps…”
Parabola, Fall 1997, pg. 49

41. WAXWINGS
   Robert Francis
   News of the Universe: poems of twofold consciousness, ed. Robert Bly, pg. 139

42. 62
   e.e. cummings
   73 poems, pg. 76

43. Summer Solstice
   David Kherdian
   Seeds of Light, pg. 162

44. God Says Yes To Me
   Kaylin Haught
   Simply Celebrate - Turning Ordinary Days into an Extraordinary Life, November 2003 Issue #8 http://www.simplycelebrate.net/newsletter1103.html

46. In a Hard Intellectual Light
   Richard Eberhart
   Chief Modern Poets of England & America, fourth edition, pg. II-405

46. Lost
   David Wagoner
   [as quoted in The Breathing Cathedral by Martha Heyneman, pg. 54]

47. “Taittireeya-Upanishad”
   tr. Swami and Yeats
   The Ten Principal Upanishads, trans. Swami and Yeats (Faber & Faber, 1937)
   [as quoted in The Breathing Cathedral by Martha Heyneman, pg. 139]

48. A Bit of Poetry
   Rainer Maria Rilke

49. A Green-Water Stream
   Wang Wei
   Letter to P’ei Ti from Wang Wei, the mountain man
50. When mortals are alive
   Bodhidharma
   The Zen teachings of Bodhidharma (In Shaolin mythology, he is the founder of the Chan school of Buddhism)

51. “The egoist’s trick…”
   David DeBoe
   Poetry Pool: http://rinkworks.com/poetry/

52. Animal Tranquility and Decay
   William Wordsworth
   http://www.bartleby.com

53. Ode to Death
   John Tiong Chunghoo
   http://www.poemhunter.com

54. Octaves
   Edward Arlington Robinson
   The Children of the Night

55. Reading Buddhist Classics With Zhao
   At His Temple In The Early Morning
   Liu Zongyuan
   China, from the Tang period (618-907). Tang Shi San Bai Shou is a compilation of poems from this period made around 1763 by Heng-tang-tui-shi [Sun Zhu] of the Qing dynasty.

56. JIA SHENG
   Li Shangyin
   China, from the Tang period (618-907). Tang Shi San Bai Shou is a compilation of poems from this period made around 1763 by Heng-tang-tui-shi [Sun Zhu] of the Qing dynasty.

57. WHILE VISITING ON THE SOUTH STREAM
   THE TAOIST priest CHANG
   Liu Changing
   China, from the Tang period (618-907). Tang Shi San Bai Shou is a compilation of poems from this period made around 1763 by Heng-tang-tui-shi [Sun Zhu] of the Qing dynasty.

58. FAREWELL TO A JAPANESE BUDDHIST priest
   BOUND HOMeward
   Qian Qi
   China, from the Tang period (618-907). Tang Shi San Bai Shou is a compilation of poems from this period made around 1763 by Heng-tang-tui-shi [Sun Zhu] of the Qing dynasty.
59. A Certain Man
Jean Toomer
_The Lives of Jean Toomer_, pg. 180

60. If All The Hurt
Delia Blythe
_A Journal of Our Time_ #4, pg. 71

61. 29
Rabindranath Tagore
_Gitanjali (song offerings)_ , pg. 22

62. Louise Welch
Martha Heyneman
http://www.gurdjieff.org/heyneman2.htm

63. Even after all this time
Hafiz
http://www.gurdjieff.org/heyneman2.htm

64. Between the conscious and the unconscious
Kabir
http://www.gurdjieff.org/heyneman2.htm

65. The Atheist's Prayer
Miguel de Unamuno y Jugo
_In Love With Love, 100 of the Greatest Mystical Poems_ (ed. Fremantle & Fremantle) pg. 154

66. I thank You God
e. e. cummings
_In Love With Love, 100 of the Greatest Mystical Poems_ (ed. Fremantle & Fremantle) pg. 166

67. Praying
Mary Oliver

68. The Diamond Takes Shape
Hafiz (The Gift)

69. The Doppler Effect
Shimon Malin

70. Queen Mab V
Percy Bysshe Shelley
http://www.bartleby.com